Nathan Nasrallah represents clients in complex civil litigation matters as a member of the Tucker Ellis Health & Life Sciences Group.

Nate is a problem solver who specializes in developing case-specific strategies to position clients for success at each phase of the litigation process, from discovery and dispositive motion practice to trial and appeals. Nate applies his results-driven approach to a wide variety of practice areas, including medical device and pharmaceutical liability, commercial litigation and business disputes, class actions and multidistrict litigation, white collar crimes, and government regulations.

Nate is a former judicial law clerk to Judge Solomon Oliver, Jr. of the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Ohio and a former judicial extern to Judge Karen Nelson Moore of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit. Drawing on those experiences, Nate identifies and focuses on the unique issues and facts that are best-suited to persuade judges.

As a former co-captain and academic All-American for his university's football team, Nate brings grit, blue-collar work ethic, and leadership to each and every case.

Outside of work, Nate is a passionate Cleveland sports fan, and he enjoys hiking and camping with his wife, Ginny, and their dog, Griffey.
